

Book Title: Leonardo da Vinci

Author: Karen Ball and Rosie Dickins

Publisher: Usborne

This book talks about the young Leonardo. He loved drawing and inventing things. This talent took him from the ordinary village of Vinci, where he grew up, to Florence – a city buzzing with great artists and thinkers. It was the start of a brilliant career. Soon, Leonardo's amazing artistic and engineering skills were in demand all over Italy.

I believe not everyone knows who Leonardo da Vinci is, but I think everyone should know about his artwork such as 'Mona Lisa' and 'The Last Supper'.

Actually, Leonardo da Vinci was also an architect, botanist, stage designer, mathematician, military expert, musician and writer. Do you know why he was talented at almost everything? It is because when he was still in the village of Vinci, where he grew up, he was interested in everything around him and he tried to learn about them as much as he could.

I read a book before which talks about genius all over the world and Leonardo da Vinci is the most talented person mentioned. Although he does great on everything, he never stops his study and investigation. He is a role model to all of us.

I have got a very important message from this book. We should never give up or stop learning because knowledge is our best friend forever. Maybe we don't need it now but we will never know when we will use our knowledge.
